CLAIM REJECTIONS UNDER 35 U.S.C. § 102

Claims 1-11, 32-43 and 45-50, are rejected as being anticipated by Kim, U.S. Patent Publication No. 2003/0078061.

Under 35 USC 102(b), prima facie case of anticipation is established when the Examiner provides a single prior art or a reference that either expressly or inherently describes each and every element and that the elements are arranged as required by the claim.

Independent claim 1, as amended discloses among other elements, "the control data includes at least one of: at least one key useful in decrypting the multimedia stream, data associated with a subscription to a multimedia broadcast service, data associated with a registration on a multimedia broadcast network, at least one application useful in decoding the multimedia data, billing information, data related to user preferences, and data related to levels of service related to providing the multimedia stream." The Kim reference (the provided portion) describes at paragraph [0042] method of controlling unauthorized users by using decryption keys and encryption keys having a valid period. Also, at paragraph [0037], Kim reference describes method of format converting, generally from MPEG-2 format to H.263 format. Additionally, paragraph [0037] describes formatting additional information such as EPG. However, the Kim reference fails to describe among other things, control data comprising an application useful in decoding the billing information and data related to levels of service related to providing the multimedia stream. Therefore, applicant believes that the Claim 1 is believed to be in allowable condition and respectfully requests the Examiner to remove the rejection and provide a notice of allowance of Claim 1.

Independent claim 17, as amended to include the recitations of claim 28, now discloses among other elements, "the control data includes at least one of: data associated with a registration on a multimedia broadcast network, at least one application useful in playing the multimedia data, billing information, and data related to user preferences." The applicant would like to respectfully note that claim 16 and 28 do not have same recitations. Claim 28 for control data may have at least one application useful in playing the multimedia data, billing information and data related to user preferences. Thus, application respectfully requests either to accept the amended claim 17 incorporating recitations of claim 28 or provide a new non-final office action providing specific reasons for rejecting claims 28 (or amended claim 17). The Kim fails to describe among other things, the control data that includes at least one application useful in playing the multimedia data, billing information and data related to user preferences. Therefore, applicant believes that the Claim 17 is believed to be in allowable condition and respectfully requests the Examiner to remove the rejection and provide a notice of allowance of Claim 17.

Independent claim 34 and 47, as amended to include the recitations of claim 42, now discloses among other elements, "the control data includes billing information data related to user preferences and/or data related to levels of service related to providing the multimedia stream." The Kim reference (the provided portion used in rejecting claim 42) describes at paragraph [0009] prior art problems of controlling unauthorized users. However, the Kim reference fails to describe among other things, the control data that includes billing information data related to user preferences and/or data related to levels of service related to providing the multimedia stream. Therefore, applicant believes that the Claim 34 and 47 are believed to be in allowable condition and respectfully requests the Examiner to remove the rejection and provide a notice of allowance of Claims 34 and 47.

CLAIM REJECTIONS UNDER 35 U.S.C. § 103

Claims 12, 31 and 44, are rejected as being unpatentable over Kim in view of McClellan, U.S. Patent Publication No. 2004/008794.

In light of the amendments and arguments provided above, the Applicant believes that dependent claims 12, 31, and 44 that depend from independent claims 1, 17 and 42, respectively, are now also in condition of allowance.
